

Per-pair correlation hides that these models cannot tell drugs apart

The information exists in the data — it is lost in the map from molecular structure to response

